Dear Friend,

When I was a fellow at All Souls College, Oxford in the 1980s, I would drive out to East Anglia with my wife to visit its history-haunted towns: Cambridge, with its soaring medieval spires; Norwich, a handsome, high-sitting cathedral town; and Bury St. Edmunds, one of the most splendid places I have ever visited.

Many years later I went back to East Anglia in search, not of a city, but of a story, one of the most absorbing I had ever heard. I heard it first from my father. He told it to me in palatable pieces after I discovered, at age nine, his WWII Army Air Forces flying jacket in my grandparent's attic. I first saw part of the story a year later at the Strand Theater in Reading, Pennsylvania, when my parents took me to a showing of The Glenn Miller Story. Jimmy Stewart played the legendary Air Force bandleader, and in the car on the way home my Dad said Stewart was a real life war hero, one of the outstanding commanders in the Eighth Air Force. When my Dad died in 1995, I thought it was time to write a book about his war, the Air War, and that's the story I went after in East Anglia.

On our tour of East Anglia, we will visit with some of the very farm families I interviewed for Masters of the Air; and what some old-timers may have forgotten is emblazoned in the memories of their descendants, who have carried on the story by lovingly restoring and maintaining the bases we will visit in bomber country. Listening to their tales of the American boys who flew and fought, visiting the museums they have built in old concrete control towers, and standing on the observation deck of the tower museum at Thorpe Abbots, the wind whipping in your face, you will never get closer to the war.

These people appreciate the sacrifices the American bomber boys made for them. That's what motivates them to maintain, without expectation of gain, the bases they rebuilt on the soil of their ancestors.

On one of my earliest research trips to Thorpe Abbots, home of the 100th Bomb Group, an aged gentleman looked me up. As a nine-year old boy, he was taken in—"adopted," he told me—by a group of boisterous flyboys. They taught him how to chew gum, to jitterbug, and to swear properly—and they smuggled ice cream to him from the PX. In return, his mother did their wash.

When I met him, he was 84 and so crippled up with arthritis he could barely hold a pen. His daughter had brought him to me after hearing that I was interviewing locals about their wartime experiences. He spoke haltingly, and with trembling hands he presented me a letter he had written, in great pain, one sentence an hour, his daughter said. It was meant not for me but for the airmen of the Eighth. He wanted me to share it with veterans I knew. He wanted to thank them.

I hope you will join me in honoring the brave men of the Eighth Air Force in the places that offered them a fantastic welcome over 75 years ago and that still work diligently to preserve their legacy today.

Sincerely,
Donald L. Miller

Stand where history was made

Aircraft and Airfields

The rural farmland of East Anglia became the headquarters for the “Bomber War.” Villages, with pre-war populations in the hundreds, suddenly buzzed with the energy of thousands of pilots, crew, and support staff carrying out the missions to bring about the unconditional surrender of Nazi Germany. Almost daily, citizens of villages such as Thorpe Abbots, Rougham, and Horham would hear the roar of the engines and watch B-17s, B-24s, and fighter escorts take to the skies. This was a new type of warfare, a war waged from the skies against an unseen enemy.

Learn Their Names

Aces, Warriors, and Wingmen

The duties of a bomber crew were vastly different from that of the ground troops. The crew of a B-17 was able to live in relative quiet for the majority of their service. But when the combat mission came, it was intense, chaotic, and dangerous. One critical malfunction, one piece of flak, or one error could mean death or capture for all. The noise was deafening, the air was cold, and the enemy could hear the approach. Each successful mission only brought about the prospect of more. For men like Robert “Rosie” Rosenthal, Louis Loevsky, and Eugene Carson, each mission was either one step closer to the end of the war or one step closer to an unfortunate end.

Hear Their Stories

Life in Wartime England

Masters of the Air is a story of life in wartime England, in bombed-out London, and in the tiny hamlets these brash young Americans completely transformed. In East Anglia, many airmen fell in love with British girls they met in the local pubs, and over 45,000 American servicemen brought home English brides after the war. The beautiful countryside and stately manor homes give way to the remains of Royal Air Force (RAF) Bases, some of them with their control towers still visible on the skyline.

Donald L. Miller, PhD

Author, Masters of the Air

Historian and best-selling author Donald L. Miller, PhD and his book Masters of the Air: America's Bomber Boys Who Fought The Air War Against Nazi Germany are the inspiration for this program. Miller's masterful storytelling brings to life the air bases, landscape, and history of East Anglia. His passion for the men of the Eighth Air Force creates an emotional experience available only through this program.

Miller is a seasoned veteran of The National WWII Museum's educational travel program, having led sold-out tours on Normandy, the Battle of the Bulge, and the Mediterranean. Miller's book Masters of the Air: America's Bomber Boys Who Fought the Air War Against Nazi Germany was selected to serve as the foundation for HBO's forthcoming dramatic miniseries, Masters of the Air, produced by Tom Hanks and Stephen Spielberg. Miller has appeared in dozens of PBS and History Channel programs. He narrated and helped to produce and write the award-winning PBS series, A Biography of America. He is the author of nine books, including the prize-winning City of the Century: The Epic of Chicago and The Making of America, The Story of World War II, and D-Days in the Pacific. He currently sits on the Museum's Presidential Counselors advisory board.

More by Dr. Miller

“Can’t say enough about the passion of the local volunteers. They were very welcoming and appreciative of our interest in the wonderful sites they’ve created.”

– Debbie A., East Hampton, NY

“My husband and I heard Dr. Miller speak on his book, Masters of the Air, at Lafayette College, when it was released. On our ride home that evening, we said it would be great to visit the areas he talked about....this trip was, literally, a wish come true. We would take this trip again in a heartbeat if only our bucket list wasn’t so long. Every aspect of the trip was first class...The National WWII Museum had all the bases covered, and we could not have had a finer group of fellow travelers.”

– Harry S., Baton Rouge, LA

“LOVED Thorpe Abbots and Horham – the people there made the whole trip above and beyond special. The bases were the true highlight of the tour in my eyes. There was an incredible amount of content. I learned so much. Further I had fun and was really touched by the care and incredible hospitality of the very lovely volunteers. As someone with a relative who was part of the 8th Air Force, it was incredibly touching to see the way these people remember and honor the airmen all these generations on.”

– Lindsey B., Rochester, NY

“The personal connection to the Brits who devote their time and efforts to keeping the stories of the 8th Air Force alive is powerful. Seeing and walking the grounds of the air bases brought to life Don Miller’s storytelling so beautifully presented in Masters of the Air. Seeing what are now farmers fields returned from their rolls as 8th Air Force bases provided the visual context to appreciate 3,000-4,000 young 8th Air Force personnel spread across those fields at each base. Yet, the physical environment was more than matched by talking with the Brits who have taken it upon themselves to preserve the memory of what the Bomber Boys did for them and for all of us. This was a great day.”

Youth of the Flying Fortresses

In 1942, thousands of young Americans arrived in East Anglia to take to the skies in the world's first and only "Bomber War." From bases dotting this history-haunted landscape, pilots and crewmen fought their battles above continental Europe through a succession of aerial encounters that lasted sometimes only minutes. These intense battles were followed by periods of relative calm back at the base, but each airman of the Eighth Air Force fought knowing that each mission could be his last. One well-placed shot by a German pilot, a hit from the flank below, or a critical malfunction could mean the end of the plane and its crew.

This National WWII Museum's exclusive week-long Masters of the Air tour will visit the villages and airfields from which American flyboys launched their massive bombing campaign against Nazi Germany. The bases, control towers, and museums that tell the story of the US Eighth Air Force will be part of the tour, but so too will the opportunity to view restored aircraft like the ones the Bomber Boys flew, to immerse yourself in the very pubs and country inns they frequented, and to meet, in London and elsewhere, survivors of the German Blitzkrieg.

DAY 2

After breakfast, Dr. Miller presents a lecture on the Eighth Air Force and gives an overview of the itinerary. The first stop provides a chance to reflect upon the carnage of the "Bomber War" at the Cambridge American Cemetery. The cemetery contains the remains of 3,812 of our military dead, and 5,127 names are recorded on the Tablets of the Missing. Most died in the Battle of the Atlantic or in bombing raids over Hitler's Reich. Thorpe Abbotts

DAY 3

Today begins at Thorpe Abbotts, the wartime base of the 100th Bombardment Group, "The Bloody Hundredth," as the group was called, for the staggering losses its B-17 crews suffered in daylight raids over Germany and Nazi-occupied Europe. A celebratory visit to the airbase includes Eighth Air Force re-enactors and a fish & chips wagon to bring back the feel of the 1940s. Local villagers will greet guests and provide a guided tour around the air base they have lovingly brought back to life. Many of them were there as young boys and girls when the Americans fliers arrived in the spring of 1943, and they will have wonderful stories to share with the group.

The group continues to nearby Horham, home of the 95th Bombardment Group, one of the most decorated air units of the war. The villagers who restored the base will host a pub party in their officer's club complete with local musicians celebrating the music of the Glenn Miller Band.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert “Rosie” Rosenthal was one of the most decorated airmen of the Eighth Air Force. Working at a law firm in Manhattan in 1941, Rosenthal, a star athlete at Brooklyn College, enlisted the day after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He was assigned to the 100th Bombardment Group at Thorpe Abbots. A portrait of his plane, Royal Flush, hangs in the halls of the US Congress. The artist depicts Royal Flush's return from his third mission of the war, to Munster, Germany, the only one of the group's thirteen B-17s to return to Thorpe Abbots that day.

Less than a year later, Rosenthal was shot down over France, breaking his arm and nose. He resumed flying one month after being released from the hospital. He was shot down one more time, on his 52nd mission, and was rescued by the Red Army and returned to England. By the war's end, he had flown 52 missions, 27 more than were required. In June 1946, Rosenthal was able to return to his career in law as an assistant to the United States Prosecutor at the Nuremberg War Trials, where one of his fellow litigators was a beautiful Navy attorney he met onboard the ocean liner that carried them to Germany. They married in Nuremberg.

Control Towers of East Anglia

When traveling through the low-lying countryside of East Anglia, one might see, off in the distance, a square-shaped concrete tower located in the middle of a farmer's grain field. This would be the once-active control tower of a WWII American bomber base, a self-contained military village of up to 3,000 men and three Red Cross women. Clustered closely together, these bases comprised a war front, one of the strangest war fronts in all of history. It was from these bases, beginning in August 1942, that the Eighth Air Force flew the first of nearly 1,000 missions against Nazi Germany. Every one of these strikes was directed, from takeoff to landing, by the highly trained personnel in these ancient-looking stone towers. Today they are priceless pieces of wartime archeology that have been restored and revived by local residents as museums.

With England's constantly changing island weather, its perpetual cloud cover, and the immense number of bomber bases crowded into this small region, conducting air operations was exceedingly chancy, sometimes nearly as risky as the time spent by the bombers in enemy flak fields over their targets.

When the big brown bombers returned home from Germany, they were "counted in" by air commanders standing on the open-air observation decks of the stone towers. And from here ambulances and fire trucks were rushed out to the landing strips to bring back the wounded and the dead and to put out furious oil fires caused by crash landings. Thousands of bomber boys died on English soil, not only in the air over the Reich.

Several of the towers have been turned into museums containing memorabilia and artifacts both from the airmen who flew here and from the civilians who lived alongside. Thorpe Abbots has dedicated their museum to the 100th Bombardment Group while Bury St. Edmunds is in remembrance of the 94th Bombardment Group. Many of the volunteers who maintain these control tower museums are the descendants of the locals who welcomed, and sometimes tolerated, the brash, gum-chewing Americans in the summer of 1943.

Rougham

DAY 4

From Bury St. Edmunds, also known as Rougham Air Field, the men of the 94th Bomb Group flew more than 300 missions over the German Reich. The Rougham Control Tower is one of the best-preserved military buildings in the region, and dedicated volunteers carry on the legacy of the Americans who called Bury St. Edmunds home for almost three years. This afternoon and evening is free to take advantage of Bury St. Edmunds's historic charm with a visit to one of the many local pubs or a stroll through the magnificent Abbey Gardens.

American Air Museum, Duxford

DAY 5

The American Air Museum in Britain, part of the Imperial War Museums, is located at Duxford, near Cambridge. It is home to the best collection of American military aircraft on public display outside of North America. The museum features the warplanes and equipment of not only the Eighth Air Force, but also of aircraft that flew before and after World War II. The historians and curators who designed the exhibits will be our hosts. After lunch on your own on the museum's campus, witness a simulated dogfight between a British Spitfire and a Messerschmitt Bf 109 in the skies over Duxford. The experience is designed exclusively for the Masters of the Air tour. After returning to Bury St. Edmunds, visit the historic Greene King Brewery for a tour, a beer tasting, and dinner. The Greene King Brewery was kept in business during the war thanks to Academy Award-winning actor and Eighth Air Commander Jimmy Stewart, who ordered trucks of its foaming lager every week for the thirsty air crews of the 453rd Bombardment Group, stationed at Old Buckenham, a bomber base not far from Bury St. Edmunds.

Accommodations: Angel Hotel (B, D)

History in Flight: A Simulated Dog Fight Above East Anglia

Outnumbered by Germany in both planes and pilots in July 1940, the Royal Air Force made a heroic stand against an enemy that had steamrolled through Europe. For more than three months, RAF pilots repelled numerous German attempts to gain air superiority and fought back against devastating bombing raids. By August, Germany was unable to combat the RAF during the day, and the Luftwaffe resorted to night raids and bombings of Britain's factories, public utilities, and food supplies. As the air battle entered October, Britain had caught up with, and surpassed, Germany in fighter aircraft production. Unable to gain the necessary air superiority, Operation Sea Lion—Hitler's planned invasion of Britain—was postponed. In honor of their courage, the RAF pilots of the Battle of Britain are known as "The Few," recalling Churchill's line, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Relive the heroism of the RAF pilots with a simulated dog fight in the skies above Duxford. Exclusively for guests on the Masters of the Air tour, expert pilots will reenact maneuvers from the Battle of Britain. A Spitfire representing X4474 of Duxford's 19 Squadron flown by Sergeant Bernard Jennings in 1940 will face off against a Messerschmitt, restored as a Bf 109. Watch to see if the Spitfire can properly use altitude and the sun to gain the advantage over the Bf 109 as the skilled RAF pilots did in 1940 while defending their homes.

Restored and operated by Aircraft Restoration Company at Duxford, each plane has a noteworthy history. The Spitfire was built in 1944 as a single-seat LFIX fighter and flew more than 20 sorties over France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Germany from October 1944, through the end of the war. In the decades since World War II, the plane was used as a trainer, underwent modifications to a two-seat design, and was almost completely destroyed in a crash in 2000. Since its reconstruction, the plane has flown in numerous airshows, and has represented the Spitfires of the Battle of Britain since 2010.

The Messerschmitt Bf 109 will be represented by a close cousin, a Hispano Buchon fighter constructed in Spain from Bf 109 airframes given to the Spanish Air Force by Germany. Spitfire Productions purchased the aircraft from Spain in 1968 for use in the film The Battle of Britain. In preparation for the film, the Buchon underwent its full transformation to a Messerschmitt Bf 109. Wing tips were squared off, tail struts were added, and dummy machine guns were fitted to the wings to match the 1940s appearance of a Bf 109. While filming, the plane simulated its first dogfight over the skies of East Anglia. After 40 years, the aircraft was once again a movie star with a role in the 2008 film Valkyrie starring Tom Cruise.

ww2brick7.org | 1-877-813-3329 X 500 | bricks@nationalww2museum.org

The National WWII Museum's Road to Victory brick program honors the WWII generation, the American heroes who served during the war, and their families. The goal of our program is to celebrate the American spirit while forging a link between the present generation and the generation that fought to secure our nation's freedom during World War II. Therefore, the Museum reserves the right to deny requests for inscriptions that might be considered offensive or inappropriate to those who sacrificed during the WWII era, or messages that do not align with the Museum's mission, which is to tell the story of the American experience in the war that changed the world—why it was fought, how it was won, and what it means today—so that all generations will understand the price of freedom and be inspired by what they learn.

Terms and Conditions

TOUR FARE

Your tour fare covers arrangements and services including hotel accommodations, meals as per the itinerary, gratuities, ground transportation, guiding services, and special tour inclusions as described within the travel program brochures and on the Museum's web-site at: www.ww2museumtours.org. All fares are quoted in US dollars, are per guest and are based on double occupancy. As indicated below, airfare to and from the tour destination is not included in your tour fare. The Museum accepts no liability for the purchase of non-refundable airline tickets.

Prices quoted are based on fares in effect at the time of printing and are subject to change at any time. On land and/or cruise programs, up to the time of full payment the Museum reserves the right to increase the tour price in the event of cost increases due to changes in supplier costs, currency fluctuations or fuel or energy surcharges and all such increases are to be paid to the Museum upon notice to the tour participant of such increases.

TRAVEL INSURANCE

Because our cancellation policy is strictly enforced, we strongly recommend that you purchase trip cancellation insurance. In the event that you must cancel your participation, trip cancellation insurance may be your only source of reimbursement. Travel Cancellation is offered through the Museum's Travel Department and information is included in your initial confirmation packet accordingly.

HEALTH, MEDICAL AND TOUR REQUIREMENTS

All guests are required to advise in writing to the Museum at the time their reservation is made if they have:

- Any physical or mental condition that may require medical or professional treatment or attention during the tour;
- Any condition that may pose a risk to one's self and/or other participants on tour;
- Any condition that may require health aids, i.e.; oxygen, walkers, crutches, etc., or any intention or need to use a wheelchair while on the tour.

By booking passage the guest represents and warrants that he/she is physically and otherwise fit to travel and that guests will comply at all times with applicable rules and regulations of the Museum. The Museum reserves the right without liability to require a passenger to leave the tour or to refuse to accept a guest as a tour participant who, in the sole judgment of the Museum, is unfit to travel, is a danger to himself or herself or to others, does not follow instructions of the tour leader, may distract from the enjoyment of the trip by others or may require care beyond that which the Museum is reasonably able to provide.

We highly recommend that participants purchase a travel insurance package that provides medical coverage since most U.S. policies do not provide coverage outside the United States.

LUGGAGE

Luggage will be limited to one (1) suitcase and one (1) carry-on per person to ensure that there is enough room on the motor coach for all passenger luggage. All luggage must be securely packed and clearly labeled. We recommend that all participants secure baggage loss and damage insurance that may be purchased for this tour.

Please see airline weight and size restrictions for luggage on international flights. The Museum is not responsible for loss or damage to luggage or any other personal item during air travel, while in a hotel during land programs, on a cruise or while on shore excursions. Under no circumstances may dangerous items (i.e. explosives, firearms, liquid oxygen, combustible or illegal substances) be taken on the tour. We recommend that you hand carry travel documents (passports and tour tickets), medications and valuables, and check with your airline regarding carry-on baggage restrictions. These items are the full responsibility of the guest at all times. The Museum shall not be responsible for the loss of or damage to such personal items.

LAND TOURS, LECTURES AND PERSONALITIES

All tours are operated by independent contractors. These independent contractors may impose additional terms and conditions and limitations of liability on tour participants. Other independent contractors retained by the Museum such as lecturers, guest personalities and entertainers are subject to change and/or cancellation without notice.

TRAVEL DOCUMENTS

All travel documents (air and tour tickets, passport) are the responsibility of the guest. It is also your responsibility to comply with all customs requirements. Without the required documents, you may be denied boarding and the Museum will not be liable for such denial or bear any financial responsibilities as a result thereof.

Security measures imposed by governments may change from time to time and you will be required to comply with them. We will endeavor to provide you with notice of measures which may affect you; but complying with any such requirement is your responsibility.
