Dear Friend of the Museum,

I invite you to join The National WWII Museum on a comprehensive tour of the sites made significant during the Battle of the Bulge. Expertly researched by our own staff and led by Luxembourg native and longtime friend of the Museum Roland Gaul, this is the most immersive tour of the Ardennes available today. From the famous “northern shoulder” of the Bulge near Elsenborn Ridge through the Bastogne Corridor and to the Luxembourg Ardennes, you will trace the routes of the last major German offensive in the West and encounter the heroic stories of the American soldiers who fought and won the largest and costliest campaign of World War II.

In late 1944, few thought that a massive German counterattack was possible. Rome fell on June 4, and two days later, the greatest amphibious invasion in history brought more than 150,000 men to the shores of Normandy on D-Day. By the end of August, French and American soldiers were marching through the streets of Paris. Hitler’s “Fortress Europe” was broken, and the Allies were rushing toward the German border on the road to Berlin. As Christmas approached, the Allied Forces in Europe felt the war was nearing its end.

But on December 16, that optimism vanished suddenly. The supposedly impossible German counterattack was here and was larger than anyone could have anticipated. With over 400,000 German soldiers ready to push into the Ardennes, the next five weeks tested the limits of our troops. Anyone who has read or watched Band of Brothers by Museum founder Stephen E. Ambrose knows of the swirling snow, the bitter cold, and the murderous nature of the German onslaught.

The Battle of the Bulge tour retraces the unexpected, dramatic battle and offers the unique opportunity to visit key sites with expert battlefield guides while exploring oral histories of Battle of the Bulge veterans from the Museum’s digital archive. Join us for this inspiring educational journey and stand in the precise locations where the American spirit overcame the last, desperate gamble of the Third Reich.

Sincerely,

Stephen J. Watson
President & CEO, The National WWII Museum
Stand Where History Was Made

On the outskirts of Bastogne, near the town of Foy, a short walk into the woods leads to the foxholes used by Easy Company of the 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment, 101st Airborne Division. Braving temperatures of 20 degrees below zero, Easy Company held out against intense shelling, aerial attacks, and German assaults. The foxholes, dug on December 18, 1944, are still visible today, and a memorial to Easy Company honors the men who held Bastogne and recaptured Foy.

Learn Their Names

To the memory of the soldiers of the United States Army who while prisoners of war were massacred by Nazi troops on this spot on 17 December 1944. We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain.

- Inscription on the Malmedy Massacre Memorial Baugnez Crossroads, Belgium

Near Malmedy, Belgium, a memorial consists of 84 flat stones bearing the names of American prisoners massacred in a field by soldiers from Kampfgruppe Peiper who opened fire on the unarmed prisoners. A handful of survivors lived to tell the story of what happened there, which quickly made its way through the ranks of soldiers. Surrender was not an option.

HEAR THEIR STORIES

Hear from the men of the Battle of the Bulge who persevered through the toughest conditions: surviving German artillery, tree bursts, and the freezing temperatures. “Cold. It was so cold that if you got wet, you couldn’t get dry.” Lewis “Jack” Baldwin vividly remembers the conditions in which he and his fellow Rangers fought in the Ardennes. With record low temperatures, the weather was as much an enemy as the Germans. Baldwin was told that anyone who was separated from his men would freeze to death.

Learn the rest of the story online in The Digital Collections of The National WWII Museum. Visit: https://www.ww2online.org/ and watch his oral history by entering “Jack Baldwin” in the search field.

This Nazi flag was signed by some of the 101st Airborne Division’s "Battered Bastards of Bastogne," including Anthony Mesich, Stanley Ehret, Sam Jewell, Arthur Nash, and Lt. Leslie Schultz. Gift in Memory of Anthony C. Mesich, 2010.052.002

LEATHER GLOVE OF MAJOR GENERAL TROY MIDDLETON

During the Battle of the Bulge, Major General Troy Middleton gained fame for his decision to hold the key crossroads town of Bastogne as German forces advanced around it. A distinguished WWI veteran, Middleton came out of retirement to serve in World War II. He served for 480 days in combat—more than any other American general—and retired again in 1945. He later served as president of Louisiana State University.

Upon arrival at Brussels International Airport, guests are warmly welcomed by tour staff. Depart for Clervaux, Luxembourg, with a lunch stop along the way. This evening, enjoy a welcome dinner with the group.

Accommodations: Hotel Le Clervaux (L, D)
The first full day of touring explores the “northern shoulder” of the Bulge, where the outnumbered Americans on the Elsenborn Ridge offered unexpected resistance in the first days of the German attack. Visit the little village of Lanzerath, Belgium, where a small American platoon under the command of 20-year-old Lieutenant Lyle Bouck held back 500 German paratroopers for an entire day. Continue to the “twin villages” of Rocherath and Krinkelt, where superior German armor failed to break through the American positions. Enjoy a group lunch and finish the day with a tour of Camp Elsenborn. The evening is free to explore Clervaux and enjoy dinner on your own.

THROUGH THEIR EYES

1ST LIEUTENANT LYLE BOUCK
1923 – 2016

Born in St. Louis, Missouri, Lyle Bouck joined the National Guard at age 14, and found himself in the Ardennes six years later—in charge of an 18-man intelligence and reconnaissance platoon. He was one of the youngest commissioned officers in the Army, and had grown accustomed to giving orders to older soldiers.

Bouck’s platoon made frequent patrols into Germany to scout terrain and enemy movements, occasionally returning with German prisoners for interrogation. But they never encountered evidence of a looming German attack. During a transfer of divisions in the area around Elsenborn Ridge, Bouck’s platoon was ordered to defend the position near the town of Lanzerath. Holding and defending a position was unusual for an intelligence and reconnaissance platoon, but Bouck had no doubt his men could do the job.

On the morning of December 16, Bouck was surprised by the sound of shelling. The area in front of his platoon was hit, and the shelling was moving closer and closer to his position. Luckily, the firing overshot their position. Bouck wanted to mount an ambush on Germans in Lanzerath, but his position was revealed. Digging in on a hill, Bouck’s men repelled three German frontal assaults, but during a fourth assault, the Germans flanked Bouck’s position. Surrounded and out of ammunition, the men of the Intelligence and Reconnaissance Platoon, 394th Regiment, 99th Infantry Division surrendered.

The efforts of the intelligence and reconnaissance platoon tied up a much larger German force for an entire day, allowing other American units time to regroup and prepare a defense. For their efforts, all 18 men in the platoon were decorated, and the platoon received the Presidential Unit Citation. Bouck received the Distinguished Service Cross.
SS-Standartenfuhrer Joachim Peiper, commander of the lead elements of the 1st SS Panzer Division, and his men were at the tip of the German counterattack. On December 17, 1944, Peiper’s unit shot 84 US prisoners in cold blood near Malmedy—a crime that strengthened American resolve during the battle. The victims were machine-gunned in an open field, with a few survivors managing to escape to tell the tale of the massacre. After hearing the news, other American units knew that surrender was not an option, even if outnumbered or surrounded.

Today, the tour will follow the path of Peiper’s attack and will hear the heroic stories of American GIs whose actions blunted and eventually halted the main German thrust in the north. Other sites visited include Stavelot, Trois Ponts, and La Gleize.

Accommodations: Hotel Le Clervaux (B, L, D)
Theodore "Ted" Paluch was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to a small family. Ted followed the war in Europe closely and thought that the United States might eventually get involved. He was playing pinball on Sunday, December 7, 1941, when he heard about the attack on Pearl Harbor from a friend. Initially attempting to enlist in the Marine Corps, which turned him down, he was drafted into the Army in 1943 and sent into combat in the Hürtgen Forest in 1944, as part of the 285th Field Artillery Observation Battalion.

After fighting in the Hürtgen Forest, the 285th was sent south, and ordered to report to St. Vith, Belgium, on December 16. On December 17, one day into the German attack, Paluch and the 285th were passing through the town of Baugnez, where they encountered the lead elements of Kampfgruppe Peiper. Under attack from tanks and vehicles, Paluch jumped into an ice-cold ditch. A German tank commander ordered him and the other remaining men to surrender. They were marched to a field where SS troopers searched the prisoners and took everything of value from them.

As the American prisoners stood in the field with their hands up, the SS troopers left. Suddenly, a column of vehicles approached and began firing into the crowd of prisoners. Next, tanks passed by and fired into the middle of the crowd. Paluch fell to the ground and was hit in the hand. After lying in the field for more than an hour, Paluch and several men escaped toward Malmedy where they reported their story and received treatment for their wounds.

Word of the massacre near Malmedy spread rapidly through American lines and helped strengthen the American resolve to stop the German offensive dead in its tracks. The Battle of the Bulge officially ended on January 25, 1945, when American forces pushed the Germans back to their original pre-December 16 lines.
THE ITINERARY

DAY 4
BASTOGNE

Starting at the Our River Bridge in Dasburg on the German/Luxembourg border, follow the route of the German 5th Panzer Army on its way to Bastogne. In Bastogne itself, visit the sites honoring the men and women who held strong against the German siege. See the memorial to Renée Lemaire, a Belgian nurse who worked tirelessly at an American aid station in Bastogne. On Christmas Eve, the Germans bombed the aid station, and Lemaire died while evacuating wounded soldiers from the burning building. In the Bois Jacque, visit the foxholes used by Easy Company during their heroic defense of Bastogne. This afternoon, receive a guided tour at the Bastogne War Museum. Enjoy an evening and dinner on your own.

Accommodations: Hotel Le Clervaux (B, L)
Just a short train ride from Luxembourg City, Clervaux is located on a narrow plain between two ridges. Rising above the southern edge of town, the Clervaux Castle dates back to the 12th century and overlooks the medieval town.

Clervaux was directly in the sights of the German 5th Panzer Army on December 16, 1944, when the Germans crossed the Our River into Luxembourg. Beyond Clervaux was the vital crossroads town of Bastogne, Belgium. The German offensive was predicated on timing, and every hour lost in the early stages meant more time for the Americans to regroup and deny the Germans their true objective: the port of Antwerp.

In Clervaux, outnumbered and outgunned, Americans from the 110th Infantry Regiment of the 28th Infantry Division faced the German attack. At 9:30 a.m., the first German tanks entered the town, accompanied by 30 other armored vehicles. Soon, Colonel Norman Fuller’s command post was hit, and men throughout Clervaux were hoping to escape the rapidly advancing Germans. Instead, they received orders from Major General Norman Cota: “Hold at all cost. Give up no ground.”

As German control of Clervaux solidified, 100 Americans still held Clervaux Castle. For two more days, the Germans attacked the castle while the American defenders resisted. Working to disrupt German operations in Clervaux, Americans fired at the Germans from the castle windows. Finally, out of ammunition and with the castle on fire, the Americans had to surrender, and the last bastion in Clervaux had fallen.

Though unsuccessful in defending Clervaux, the 110th Infantry Regiment disrupted the German timing enough to allow for the defense of Bastogne. The 101st Airborne Division held Bastogne through miserable conditions, keeping an island of American territory within the bulge. Combined with the American resistance in the northern shoulder and elsewhere in the Ardennes, the German advances slowed, and any chance of the Germans reaching Antwerp disappeared.
Explore the Luxembourg Ardennes today by visiting Wiltz, where the 28th Infantry Division endured a major German attack on December 16, 1944. Retreating toward Bastogne, the 28th engaged in one of the largest individual battles of the German offensive near Café Schumann. A memorial trail leads to numerous foxholes and reminders of the battle. Continuing to the south, visit Diekirch and the National Military Museum of Luxembourg, which was founded by our guide, Roland Gaul. This museum tells the story of the Battle of the Bulge within the story of Luxembourg’s own military history.

We will endeavor to provide you with notice of measures which may affect you, but complying with any such requirement is your responsibility.
