Dear friend of the Museum and fellow traveler,

I am honored to join The National WWII Museum on a fascinating tour of this crucial World War II battlefield.

When U.S. Marines splashed ashore on Guadalcanal in August 1942, they set in motion a savage, seven-month campaign. This first U.S. counterattack of the Pacific War, on an obscure island that most American officers could not have identified on a map in 1940, was launched on a logistical shoestring. It would demand the commitment of almost every available soldier, sailor, ship, and plane from both sides. The Americans prevailed, if only barely, and in the process wrenched the initiative in the Pacific War from the heretofore-invincible Japanese.

Guadalcanal’s thick jungle terrain made fighting an unbelievable ordeal for soldiers of both sides. We will visit Alligator Creek, where a battalion-sized action at the beginning of the campaign was arguably the most important small-unit encounter of the Pacific War. A few miles away, on Bloody Ridge, we survey the panorama of a ferocious Japanese attack that nearly ended in the capture of Henderson Field. At the Gifu, on the flanks of Mount Austen, we will get a sense for the bitter fighting fanatical Japanese rearguards mounted during the campaign’s closing stages.

The naval action was just as intense. For every American soldier that died on Guadalcanal, almost three Allied sailors perished in the water. The narrow seas north of Guadalcanal, scene of some of the most violent naval clashes of the war, became known as Ironbottom Sound. It took many months, many lives, and a number of humiliating defeats before the U.S. Navy was able to learn, adapt, and turn the tables on an enemy that relished fighting at night.

Our nine-day journey begins in the cosmopolitan city of Brisbane, Australia. We visit the wartime headquarters of Douglas MacArthur who commanded the forces fighting in New Guinea. Less known in America, the New Guinea campaign was in many ways Australia’s defining moment of the war, and would be the springboard for MacArthur’s eventual return to the Philippines in 1944. We continue to Eagle Farm Airfield, where a secret project rebuilt downed Japanese aircraft to study their defenses.

Guadalcanal is a WWII battlefield that few Americans have been privileged to see, and through our visit, we can fully contemplate the hardships, sacrifices, and heroism of that campaign. I look forward to being your host and traveling companion, delivering relaxed evening lectures, answering questions, and discovering this unique battlefield. I know it will be an experience none of us will forget!

Sincerely,
Jonathan Parshall

Jacob Vouza was born in 1892 in Guadalcanal, where he was a British subject. Vouza spent 25 years as a police officer. After the Japanese invaded Guadalcanal in mid-1942, Vouza volunteered to work with the Coastwatchers, a group of Allied operatives who rescued stranded personnel. On August 7, Vouza conducted his first rescue of a downed aviator and met the US Marines for the first time. Vouza stayed with the Marines, volunteering to scout behind enemy lines on several missions. On August 20, 1942, the Japanese found Vouza with an American flag and subjected him to a brutal interrogation. Unwilling to forfeit any information, Vouza was stabbed multiple times with bayonets and left to die. Still conscious, Vouza escaped by chewing through his ropes and crawling through the jungle to American lines. Before he accepted medical care, Vouza reported the oncoming 250 – 500 Japanese soldiers, giving the Marines the precious few minutes they needed to form a defensive line along the Ilu River. The resulting Battle of the Tenaru was a significant American victory. For his actions during the Guadalcanal campaign, Jacob Vouza received the Silver Star and the Legion of Merit.
Guadalcanal was a trial by fire. On land, at sea, and in the air, Americans experienced their first taste of what the next three years would hold: oppressive heat, unforgiving terrain, and an enemy that refused to surrender.

The first Allied land offensive in the Pacific began on August 7, 1942, when the First and Second Marine Divisions landed on Guadalcanal. Surprised Japanese defenders immediately abandoned their defenses and the partially completed airfield. The Marines took the airfield, renaming it Henderson Field after Marine Aviator Major Lofton Henderson who died during the Battle of Midway. Henderson Field became the objective of three major Japanese offensives between August and December 1942.

In a succession of battles off the coast of Guadalcanal, both navies inflicted punishing losses yielding the nickname “Ironbottom Sound” to the waters north of the island. After their defeat at Bloody Ridge (later called Edson’s Ridge) in September 1942, the Japanese began a massive buildup to take back the island and ensure the delivery of essential supplies to Guadalcanal. The American ground forces on Guadalcanal beat back every Japanese attack on their lines, sometimes at great cost and from their last defensive positions. On February 7, 1943, the Japanese, Americans on their heels, finished their evacuation of Guadalcanal.

The air war around Guadalcanal tested the skill and nerves of the Allied pilots. Taking off from Henderson Field and aircraft carriers in the area, Allied aviators took the fight to the Japanese. The “Cactus Air Force,” named after the code name for Guadalcanal, provided much-needed air cover against the Japanese. To overcome the technologically superior Japanese Zeroes, the Americans developed tactics such as focusing on bombers, taking high dives to ambush enemy planes, and using the sun to hide in enemy blind spots.

These geographically separate battle spheres each played a significant part in the eventual US victory on Guadalcanal and the Solomon Islands as a whole. They also crushed the image of the omnipotent Japanese military, raising American morale and providing the first ground victory in the Pacific war.
As a testament to the difficulty of the fighting in Guadalcanal and the bravery and heroism of the men who first encountered the Japanese, 20 Medals of Honor were awarded for actions in and around Guadalcanal. The recipients include Marines, aviators, sailors, and soldiers. During the tour, guests will hear many of their stories.

“Only part of this medal belongs to me. Pieces of it belong to the boys who are still on Guadalcanal. It was rough as hell down there.”

DAY ONE
ARRIVALS & MACARTHUR MUSEUM

Arrive at Brisbane International Airport (BNE), Australia, and transfer to The Westin Hotel located in the heart of the city. This afternoon, experience Brisbane as it was from 1942 – 1945 when one million American servicemen rotated through the city. The MacArthur Museum, located inside the wartime headquarters of General Douglas MacArthur, tells the story of MacArthur’s time in Brisbane and the war in the South Pacific. MacArthur’s personal office is preserved inside the museum. Just a few blocks away, visit the site of the infamous Battle of Brisbane, a brawl that erupted when tensions ran high between American and Australian servicemen. This evening, get to know fellow tour mates at a Welcome Dinner.

DAY TWO

EAGLE FARM AIRFIELD

After breakfast, visit the remains of Eagle Farm Airfield, the wartime home of the 81st Air Depot Group. At Eagle Farm, Allied engineers assembled, repaired, and maintained Allied aircraft. At Hangar No. 7, a secret project aimed to give Allied aviators an advantage over the Japanese Zero fighters. The Allied Technical Air Intelligence Unit, made up of personnel from the United States, Australia, and the United Kingdom, worked to rebuild and test recovered Japanese aircraft to identify their weaknesses. Over the skies of Brisbane, residents could occasionally see Japanese aircraft, sometimes with an Allied escort or painted in friendly colors to reduce a chance of friendly fire. To ensure the secrecy of the project, Hangar No. 7 stood away from the other hangars and operated under a tight security protocol. A group lunch is included during touring today, and the evening is free to enjoy Brisbane on your own.

DAY THREE HENDERSON FIELD

A morning flight from Brisbane to Guadalcanal (lunch served in-flight) arrives in the afternoon, landing at Honiara International Airport which is built on the remains of Henderson Field. Upon arrival at the airfield, explore the surrounding terrain to appreciate the presence of Bloody Ridge, the location of the fighter strips, and the American section of the island where hospitals, barracks, and officers’ quarters once stood. A memorial tree garden now stands near the airport. Individuals from Australia and the United States have purchased the memorial trees in honor of loved ones who fought or trained in Guadalcanal. This evening, check in to the Heritage Park Hotel in Honiara and enjoy an included group dinner.

Accommodations: Heritage Park Hotel Honiara (B, L, D)

LOCAL TOUR GUIDE TIP
During all excursions in Guadalcanal, we advise guests to protect themselves from the sun with long sleeves and pants suitable for hot, humid weather. On some of the hikes, plants with thorns and spikes are present at the edge of the hiking paths.

DAY FOUR

D-DAY & THE JAPANESE COUNTERATTACKS

Touring begins at the invasion beaches where US Marines landed in their first ground assault of the war. On August 7, 1942, 11,000 Marines took Red Beach with no Japanese opposition. No American casualties occurred during the landings. By the next day, the Marines arrived at Henderson Field, capturing the lightly defended and recently completed airfield. Continue to Alligator Creek, the site of the first Japanese counterattack attempt at recapturing the airfield. In a nighttime assault, waves of between 100 and 200 Japanese soldiers attacked in the darkness. Each wave was defeated, and the Japanese lost more than 770 of their attacking force of 917 men. The next major Japanese attempt to recapture the airfield took place at Bloody Ridge, the last stop of the touring day. At Bloody Ridge, the Japanese learned from their previous attacks and assembled a much larger force that pushed the Marines to their last defensive position.

Accommodations: Heritage Park Hotel Honiara (B, L)

LOCAL TOUR GUIDE TIP
Portions of touring on Tulagi are reached by foot. The boat ride to Tulagi lasts approximately 45 minutes.
Take a short boat ride to the island of Tulagi, located to the north of Guadalcanal. Tulagi was the seat of the British colonial government of the Solomon Islands. The Japanese took the island in May 1942, and the Americans invaded on August 7, 1942, the same day as the invasion of Guadalcanal. On August 8, the island was declared secure. Tulagi became a headquarters for the subsequent efforts in the Solomon Islands. Following the war, the locals began using the remaining American infrastructure. Visit the battle sites on the island before returning to Guadalcanal for the evening.

Accommodations: Heritage Park Hotel Honiara (B, L, D)
DAY SIX
VILU WAR MUSEUM

The Vilu War Museum, nestled just inside the jungle, contains the remains of numerous Allied and Japanese aircraft. The aircraft exist in disparate conditions, but highlights include an F4U-1 Corsair, a P38F Lightning, an SBD Dauntless, and several examples of Japanese 150mm guns. During the drive along Cape Esperance, hear the stories of the naval battles that took place off the coast of Guadalcanal.

Accommodations: Heritage Park Hotel Honiara (B, L)
DAY SEVEN

BATTLE OF MOUNT AUSTEN, THE GALLOPING HORSE, AND THE SEA HORSE

Continue the journey through Guadalcanal with a visit to the Solomon Scouts & Coastwatchers Monument in Honiara. The next stop is the American Memorial that honors those Americans and their allies who lost their lives during the Guadalcanal Campaign. After lunch, examine the Battle of Mount Austen, the Galloping Horse, and the Sea Horse. Since the American landings in August 1942, the Japanese had viewed the American defenses from the top of Mount Austen. Artillery from Mount Austen harassed operations at Henderson Field, and in December 1942, small Japanese raids succeeded in destroying several American fighter planes and a fuel truck. On December 16, 1942, taking Mount Austen became the first objective in an operation designed to drive the Japanese off Guadalcanal. Combat continued through ridges and hills nicknamed Galloping Horse and Seahorse because of their appearance on topographical maps. This evening, participate in a special “Farewell to Guadalcanal” dinner and reminisce about the journey with fellow tour mates.

Accommodations: Heritage Park Hotel Honiara (B, L, D)

LOCAL TOUR GUIDE TIP
Today’s touring visits outdoor sites in a tropical, jungle environment. We’ll be staying on the well-known paths during the battlefield exploration. After a bit of hiking, there is nothing as refreshing as drinking from an ice-cold coconut.

DAY EIGHT
OPTIONAL EXPLORATION OF COFFIN CORNER

Before the heat of the day rises, participate in an optional excursion to Coffin Corner, near the site of John Basilone’s heroic actions of October 1942. The tour guide will identify the remains of foxholes and trenches along the jungle floor as you explore the terrain to get a sense of the close-quarter fighting seen in the jungle. Review after-action reports and logbooks of previous researchers, and attempt to identify the positions held by Basilone. Return to Honiara by mid-morning to prepare for the return flight to Brisbane (lunch served in-flight). The evening is free for relaxation prior to your international journey home the next day.

Accommodations: Pullman Brisbane Airport (B, L)

LOCAL TOUR GUIDE TIP
The optional excursion consists of a short hike into the jungle around Bloody Ridge. As guides, we have a lot of experience in taking interested travelers to the old foxhole positions.

DAY NINE
DEPARTURES

After breakfast, make your way to Brisbane International Airport (BNE) for your journey home. (B)

LIMITS ON THE NATIONAL WW II MUSEUM RESPONSIBILITY

The National World War II Museum Inc., a New Orleans, Louisiana, based nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization and its employees, shareholders, subsidiaries, affiliates, officers, directors or trustees, successors, and assigns (collectively “the Museum”), does not own or operate any entity which is to or does provide goods or services for your trip including, lodging facilities, airline, vessel, or other transportation companies, guides or guide services, local ground operators, providers or organizers of optional excursions, food service, or entertainment providers, etc. All such persons and entities are independent contractors. As a result, the Museum is not liable for any negligent or willful act or failure to act of any such person or entity or of any other third party.

In addition and without limitation, the Museum is not responsible for any injury, loss, death, inconvenience, delay, or damage to person or property in connection with the provision of any goods or services whether resulting from, but not limited to, acts of God or force majeure, acts of government, acts of war or civil unrest, insurrection or revolt, bites from or attacks by animals, insects or pests, strikes or other labor activities, criminal or terrorist activities of any kind or the threat thereof, sickness, illness, epidemics or the threat thereof, the lack of availability of or access to medical attention or the quality thereof, overbooking or downgrading of accommodations, mechanical or other failure of airplanes, vessels or other means of transportation, or for any failure of any transportation mechanism to arrive or depart timely or safely. Participants assume all such risks as well as the risk of negligence by the Museum and specifically releases the Museum therefrom.

If due to weather, flight schedules, or other uncontrollable factors, you are required to spend an additional night(s), you will be responsible for your own hotel, transfers and meal costs. Baggage is entirely at owner’s risk. The right is reserved to decline to accept as a trip participant, or remove from a trip, without refund, any person the Museum judges to be incapable of meeting the requirements of participating in the activities, or who is abusive to other trip participants, leaders, or third parties, or who the Museum determines to detract from the enjoyment of the trip by others. Specific room/cabin assignments are within the sole discretion of the hotel or cruise line.

The Museum reserves the right to change the itinerary or trip features at any time and for any reason, with or without notice, and the Museum shall not be liable for any loss of any kind as a result of any such changes. Ship schedules, port calls, hours of arrival and departure, sightseeing events, special programs and guest lecture series (if applicable), are subject to change or cancellation without prior notice. The Museum is not responsible therefore and is not required to compensate passengers under these circumstances. The Museum may cancel a trip (or an option) for any reason whatsoever; if so, its sole responsibility is to refund monies paid by the participant to it. The Museum is not required to cancel any trip for any reason including without limitation, United States Department of State, World Health Organization, or other Warnings, or Advisories of any kind. The Museum is not responsible for penalties assessed by air carriers resulting from operational and/or itinerary changes, even if the Museum makes the flight arrangements or cancels the trip. The Museum reserves the right to substitute vessels, hotels, itineraries or attractions for those listed in this brochure.

BINDING ARBITRATION

I agree that any dispute concerning, relating or referring to this Agreement, the brochure or any other literature concerning my trip, or the trip itself, shall be resolved exclusively by binding arbitration pursuant to the Federal Arbitration Act, 9 U.S.C. §§1-16, either according to the then existing Commercial Rules of the American Arbitration Association (AAA) or pursuant to the Comprehensive Arbitration Rules & Procedures of the Judicial Arbitration and Mediation Services, Inc.
